Religious Relic —We had the pleasure, on Schurday of examining a religious device, presented by his Holiness the Pope to Dr. Duffield, of this city, by the hands of Hon. Lewig Case, Jr., to which reference is made by Dr. Duffield in a letter to his son, lately published by me. It somslite of a small ivory urn, on which are various religious emblems, containing a rosary of some fifty real pearse upon a delicate silver chain, terminating in a crucitix with the body of the Saviour dependent thereon. The emblem had received the benediction of the Pope.—Detroit Advertiser, Nov. 29.

Below is the Now York Evan & Colian Pianofortos, the New York Evan & Colian Pianofortos, the topic 28, 1852—
Abolian Pianofortos, to the advertisement of Messra. T. Gilbert & Co., of their admirable molian Pianofortos, long familiarity with these instruments mables us to speak with a degree of confidence that we could not otherwise claim respecting their great merit, and the beauty and adaptness of the molian attachment to some of the best purposes which a wuisal instrument some of the best purposes which a wuisal instrument some of the best purposes which a wuisal instrument work of and posesses remarkable sweetness and purity of tone. Within a few years great improvements have been made in their manufacture, by which a much stronger and more brilliant tone is secured, in point of depth and volume, as well as in evenness of tone throughout the entire register, and clasticity of touch, we have never tried them will be surprised to find such attainments made. The toolian is the perfection of read instruments—soft and delicate and as well adapted for the voice and for sacred music as the organ itself. In these, also, Mr. Gilbert has been making marked improvements within a few years, so that a delightful delicacy and purity of tone has been secured. They are but little liable to get out of tune, and have no bad effect upon the piano. As an accompaniment to the voice, partirularly in the execution of sacred music, as the commend these instruments in finences of this sort, that we commend these instruments in finences of this sort, that we commend these instruments with great cordiality. We are glide to find them beginning

Comfort for tenher feet, combined with the durability of leather. Those who have tender feet, arising from corns, busions, gout, chiblidains, distortions of the tees. Acc., will, on trial, admit their great superiority over leather. They receive the most brilliate polish from common blacking; they never draw the feet, even in the warmest veather, and will not get hard, or crast. They are softer, ensier, lighter, and more classic than any shoes ever effects.
